

NEGRO KILLED IN A FIGHT IN CAMP CAR; SUSPECT ARRESTED

Police Charge Lee Scott
With the Murder of His Companion.

CAPTURED AFTER BRIEF CHASE

Carroul at Greene Junction Results in Death of Man Whose Name Is
The Butcher, Residence Unknown;
Three White Men and Negro Held.

A negro whose only known name was "Al" was stabbed through the breast and so seriously injured that he died a short time later in a camp car at Greene Junction, about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Lee Scott, another negro, was arrested and locked up in the city hall on suspicion of being implicated in the crime, but Al Butler, it was learned, and likewise suspected of complicity in it, has escaped.

According to stories told by Steve Burke, John Greene, Tom Sullivan, white, and Thomas Lewis, colored, who were locked up as witnesses last night, Scott and the victim of the tragedy were "buddies," smoking, eating and sleeping together. They returned, so the other men allege, to the car yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock talking with them a "yellow" man who did not belong to the camp. Scott was heard to say "I had your fine and you got to give it back to me or there'll be a dead nigger before this night is over."

In the altercation that followed, "Al" was stabbed in the breast and Scott was seen diving out of the small side window of the car. The witnesses will not admit that they saw the stabbing, but one of them is declared to have said last night that the man who did it escaped through the little window, and Scott admits that that was the way he got out.

The witnesses declared this morning that they thought the man murdered was Butler, the yellow man who was brought back to the camp by Scott, but they are positive in their assertions that Scott and "Al" were "buddies."

Scott said last night that he did not know the man who was killed; but this morning he turned around and declared that they worked together bustling in front of the Baltimore & Annapolis station.

Officers Williams, Phelan and Chief Butler left on the 4:45 car for Greene Junction. Arriving there they had difficulty in locating the scene of the tragedy, but when they reached the scene, they found a short and rather stout negro, about 15 years old, lying on the floor of the car, with blood streaming from a gaping wound in his chest. They moved him to a bunk where he died a short time later. The wound was the result of a blow from a sharp knife. A bloody jack-knife, with a blade four inches long, was found by Chief Butler.

The negroes in the car were excited and most of them under the influence of liquor. "See here," said one of the negroes, "this is a fine place for a drink. We got some whiskey bottles here, and we got to have a drink."

This negro declared that the man responsible for the killing had disappeared, so the officers started down the car looking for him. Chief Butler and Officer Williams left for the Baltimore & Ohio office to intercept the man if he went to get his money. Arriving there they found that he had been there ahead of them, so they started looking for him. Near the end of the street a grocery store told them if they were looking for a negro without a hat, and upon their proceeding in the affirmative, told them he was a short distance up the truck.

Upon reaching Scott he made a gesture as if to draw a knife, but both officers covered him with their guns. He surrendered willingly enough, declaring that he was not armed.

Scott made no resistance on the way down to the city hall, though he protested his innocence. "Honor God," he declared, "I didn't do that killing. You got me in here for doing nothing. The man who done the killing was Al—Al Butler. I can prove it by Steve and Tom. They tell you it was Al and not me."

Asked by Chief Butler why he jumped out of a two-foot window when he could have gone out of the door just as easily, Scott replied that he was scared at the blood and did not know what he was doing. He denied drinking, declaring vehemently that he had not had a drink that afternoon. He also declared that the victim of the killing was a total stranger to him.

The present is a medium-sized, stocky built negro. He has a stubby mustache and a scar several inches in length. His lower lip which protrudes, is discolored by what seems to be a blood. He was greatly agitated when captured by the police but became somewhat composed after a bit in the lockup.

Both Scott and Butler when the prisoners implicated, were arrested in town earlier in the week. Scott was the man who attempted to pass what seemed to be a "straw" money note on the streets of Baltimore on Tuesday morning. His certificate was afterward found to be a postal savings deposit slip worth about $14, which he submitted, drew out of the local post office.

TRIDENT, Oct. 30.—They call him the "kid governor." There's a reason. He's the youngest in the United States. Leon R. Taylor is only thirty-four, yet he is acting governor of New Jersey. His office held not so long ago by Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, Taylor was speaker of the state assembly, became acting governor when Acting Governor James F. Folsom sent in his resignation as state senator because he was running on the Democratic ticket for governor.

JURY ACQUITS MRS. EATON ON A CHARGE OF MURDER

Wife of Rear Admiral Is Freed by Jury After It Had Deliberated for Eight Hours.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—After seven months in jail awaiting trial for the murder of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, Mrs. Jennie May Eaton stepped from the courthouse early this morning a free woman again. The jury, after eight hours of deliberation, found her not guilty.

As the foreman announced the verdict, Mrs. Eaton gripped the arms of her attorneys and then left the courtroom immediately. The news was quickly flashed to Ashtabula, where her crippled daughter, Dorothy, and her mother were eagerly awaiting the word. Mrs. Eaton herself hurried into an automobile and left at once for her home in New York.

The acquitted woman said she desired to avoid all unnecessary publicity. "I am going back to Ashtabula," she said, "back to the farm to live the whole thing down. I want to rest, rest, rest."

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY ORGANIZATION
BUTTS INTO CONNELLVILLE CITY
ELECTION WITH THE PARTY WHIP

Chairman Sterling Anxious to Defeat the First Practical Attempt of the Republicans of Fayette County to Get Together; Non-Partisanship Goes Glimmering; Trying to Get Tax Collectors and Election Judges, Too.

The Connellsville city election will have a fairly flimsy. It has developed that the Democratic county organization has taken an active interest in the fight. Chairman Bruce F. Sterling has been in Connellsville several evenings this week personally directing the campaign, and it is hinted that special methods will be employed to beat the Republican ticket. It being considered good generalship to defeat the first organized attempt of the Republican factions to get together again.

This Democratic move was not generally known until last night, although persons interested in the campaign have long suspected of the coming and going of the Democratic County Chairman. The action will only serve to solidify the Republicans in favor of their ticket and to incite them to more aggressive effort. A Republican citizen voiced Republican sentiment this morning when he said: "As a political movement the action of Chairman Sterling in making a county move out of Connellsville's election is a suggestion only so long as it remained a secret. Now that it has been found out it will prove a political blunder. If there has been any disposition heretofore on the part of any Republicans to be non-partisan in the city election it has passed. Chairman Sterling has driven it away. He has made the issue. It is to be a straight political fight of the Democratic party against the Republicans of every degree of faith or difference. The Republicans will meet this issue by voting the Republican ticket. Fortunately there is no reason why Republicans cannot support the Republican ticket. They couldn't vote for a better one, and the fact is generally conceded."

Chairman Sterling has not improved the Democratic situation in Connellsville, nor strengthened his county organization, by butting into the Connellsville city election. Connellsville people generally will resent Uniontown interference in their municipal affairs, or in fact any other foreign meddling with their home matters. I have never thought the Republican city ticket was in the slightest danger of defeat, but if it ever was it has been abundantly saved by the intrusion of the Democratic county organization."

TEN DAYS' PURSUIT OF ESCAPED STEER
ENDS IN BEEFSTEAK

Animal That Escaped From Stockyards Is Shot, Then Butchered.

WAS ON ITS WAY TO EUROPE

Likee Look of Connellsville and Stopped Off Here, Escaping While Companions Were Being Fed and Watered; Last Swoyer Shoots Him.

An exciting chase after a wild steer that escaped from the Baltimore & Ohio stockyards 10 days ago, ended in beefsteak at the butcher shop of John T. Hatzel on the West Side, thanks to the marksmanship of Earl Swoyer, who shot the animal while it was grazing on the farm of Dr. J. D. Jackson, four miles east of town yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Wild Texas Steer, who was on his way to Europe to regale the table of some German Baron or Italian Count, though he didn't know it, became tired of train-travel and he took the looks of Connellsville. While his companions were being unloaded at the stockyards to be fed and watered, he rambed off and kept on going up the pike. Not once did he turn back. Whenever he struck a new stretch of pasture, he stopped and grazed until he had scented his fill, or until somebody came along. Then he romped off like he used to do on the plains of Texas.

This steered on Friday last and the chase continued day after day. Various hunting parties were out after him but none of them were able to get near enough to Mr. Steer to get a shot at him. Finally, however, Harry Swoyer and his trusty rifle made a match on the animal and brought him down. Harry Hatzel then went up and butchered the steer, later bringing it down to the shop on a wagon. It is now being cut up into choice steaks.

DIES FROM SHOCK

Trip to Hospital Put to Aged Dunbar Resident.

Mrs. Ella McGill, 72 years old, one of the best known residents of Dunbar, died this morning at the Cottage State Hospital several hours after her arrival there. Mrs. McGill had been ill for about a week of antacid trouble but her condition was not considered serious until Monday. An operation being advised, as the only hope of saving her life, she was brought to Connellsville on a West Penn street car arriving here at 12:30 o'clock this morning and was rushed to the hospital. She was too weak for an operation and death soon followed from the shock caused by over-exertion from the trip. The body was taken charge of by Funeral Director J. N. Burdick of Dunbar. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Mrs. McGill had resided at Dunbar the greater part of her life and was the widow of Morgan McGill. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Dunbar and was one of its most active workers. Two children, Charles McGill at home and Mrs. Wesley Boyer of Dunbar survive. Mrs. Jennie McGill of Connellsville is a daughter-in-law.

Nothing has been heard of Berkeley since he abandoned on August 21, last. His wife recently removed to Cincinnati, where she will conduct a boarding house. WHITMAN INVESTIGATES

Asks That Little Black Book of Disclosures Be Produced.

By United Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The first big step toward what may be an investigation of national importance in connection with Tammany Hall's political methods was taken today when District Attorney Whitman ordered John H. Hennessy to produce the "little black book" which is supposed to contain a stenographic record of Senator Stuyvesant Livingston's conversations with Tammany leaders since his incarceration in Sing Sing. Another of these books is in the possession of a private detective agency and it may be that it will also be produced.

If the disclosures are substantiated, it would be an indictment well as a warning to the Grand Jury. At present there is no intention of calling Stuyvesant as a witness, and it is understood that there was no agreement between him and Hennessy as to securing him during his confinement.

Simple Invitations. WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Simple in both extreme are the invitations to the wedding of Miss Jesse Wilson, daughter of the President. They read:

GAS COMPANY'S MEN
HOLD THEIR YEARLY
GET-TOGETHER TALK

Employees of the Fayette
County Company Hold Meeting Here.

BETTER SERVICE IS DISCUSSED

High Standing of the Company Among
Other Concerns in a Similar Line
Is Commented Upon in Talk by Superintendent Anglo to His Men.

The annual "get-together" meeting of Fayette County Gas Company employees was held last evening in the company's new quarters at 302 South Pittsburgh street. The largest attendance ever at the yearly event, thirty men representing the Connellsville, Uniontown, Scottsdale and Mount Pleasant divisions, listened to talks on "Safety first," work problems, greater efficiency, employ and consumer, and the rewards attending earnest and productive efforts.

The development of the individual for greater results by each division's body of workmen was dwelt upon in an interesting manner by Superintendent Joseph E. Angle, chairman of the session. Mr. Angle then pointed out higher goals which can be attained, and declared that the efficient gas men will be asked to fill these prominent places. His audience was reminded of the high rank of the Fayette County Company among gas companies and that the eyes of many prominent gas company heads were turned upon this plant.

Improvements in lines of service, preparations for winter, and courtesy in relations with patrons and in enforcing company rules to prevent danger were topics which received much attention. Questions on various phases of gas work were then propounded and answered by experienced men.

After the business session the new office and shop were inspected by the visitors. Lunch was then served. A smoker and social period ended the event.

HALLOWEEN PRANKS

Prockers Become Obnoxious in Some Sections Cause Clashes.

Residents of every section of town are complaining of the depredations of boys and girls in their observance of the various "nights" preceding Halloween. People did not mind so much when they confined their pranks to ringing door-bells and pounding on doors, but when they broke up porch-chairs and swings, as a crowd of girls is reported to have done on the South Side last night, the owners were angry.

There were many amusing stunts pulled off, and a few really malicious ones reported. On the West Side, the youthful celebrators had flour which they sprinkled all over people's clothing. In another instance, a crowd of boys stole a wagon and several baskets of apples and had a great time coasting down the Eighth street hill.

The police were called to every part of town last night, but it is practically impossible to catch the various "nights." One man made requisition for a policeman's coat, helmet and club, in order that he might protect his property last night.

Limited's Locomotive Demolished. The Duquesne Limited was over an hour late arriving here this morning, the delay being caused by an engine off the track at "42nd."

CURFEW FOR CHORUS GIRLS

New Labor Law May Extend to Bairns, Not Intended.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—The sweeping effect of the new act of the Legislature limiting the number of hours women and girls may work is beginning to dawn on employers generally who are eager to know how they will be involved when the law becomes operative Saturday. Drawn originally for the purpose of reducing the number of hours of labor for women in industrial employment principally, the act is so broad in its provisions that it extends to vaudeville and is probably not intended by its supporters. Vaudeville, choir singers and all young women under 21 performing after 9 o'clock at night are required by the law to quit work.

"SINS OF THE FATHER"

Thomas Dixon Sends a Message to It Is Not on the Way. Thomas Dixon, Jr., who is said to have written the "Sins of the Fathers" had a message for the people in that dramatic feature. The point was lost here, where the problem involved in the plot of the play has little real significance.

"Sins of the Father" might accomplish its author's mission through the south. Up this way it becomes plain melodrama. The play was well acted and adequately staged.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Sals to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with sals occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weak, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach aches, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatism in the joints. The uric acid slowly, full of sediment, the channels often get clogged and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's uric acids get four ounces of Sals from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will thank you. This famous sals is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, and is a little Landerline and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Sals is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful after-venet 10th-water drink.—Adv.

SHOP CLASS PROPOSED

Y. M. C. A. Gets a State College Professor to Instruct Class Here.

Any young man who wants to prepare for advancement in the shop in which he works can get the needed instruction at the Y. M. C. A., with a member of the faculty of State College as his teacher and, when he finishes a given course of instruction get a certificate of efficiency from the college—provided he is willing to pay $5 for 20 lessons, one lesson a week. The only thing uncertain about the proposition is whether enough young men will take advantage of the opportunity to better their condition.

The courses proposed for shopmen covers shop arithmetic, advanced shop sketching, mechanical drawing and plumbing.

The class in mining, with Professor Zimmerman of the University of Pittsburgh, as instructor, is now in operation, meeting each Thursday evening.

GIRLS DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR.

Try This! Hair Gets Thick, Glossy, Wavy and Beautiful at Once—Stops Falling Out.

Immediate—Yes! Certain—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderline hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderline and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few minutes you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A beautiful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is weary, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Danderline beautifies the hair. Danderline dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. You care for your hair, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Danderline from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.—Adv.

Supposed Millionaire Turns Out to Be $18 a Week Bookkeeper.

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The role of a millionaire assumed by Edgar Schildknecht, an $18 a week bookkeeper for the Washburn-Crosby Milling Company, was exposed today when an embezzlement of nearly $50,000 was discovered after an examination of his books.

For nearly a year Schildknecht had lived in lavish style at the Garden City hotel in company with a woman who posed as his wife. He was host at extravagant parties and was reputed to be enormously wealthy.

But arrested Schildknecht told the officers they should locate the girl and he would "give them enough on her to send her to the pen for life."

P. R. DENIES FRICTION

President Ben States There is No Disaffection in Board.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—This statement was given out at the general offices of the Pennsylvania railroad here last night.

"The statements that there is friction in the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, growing out of negotiations to sell holdings of Cambria Steel Company's steel stock, were false, and positively denied by President Ben, who is now in charge of the lines west of Pittsburgh. Further, he says, there is absolutely no truth in the statement that Director Henry C. Bick is dissatisfied therewith or that he will retire from the board on that account."

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, and of which are narcotics, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics.

Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE ISSUE DRAWN.

Connellsville's first city election will be strictly partisan.

The non-partisan notion has been eliminated, strange as it may seem, by the party which has hitherto fostered and encouraged it. The Democratic county organization has conceived the idea that the interests of the Democratic party demand the defeat of the Republican city ticket in Connellsville, because it represents the first tangible evidence of the fact that the Republicans of Fayette county evince a disposition to get together. That disposition, it thinks, must be nipped in the bud. Republican disunion must be encouraged. The Democrats can hope to win in the county only through division of the opposition.

The defeat of the Republican city ticket will furnish the Democratic plotters with a foundation upon which to create and foster suspicions of bad faith among Republicans.

It will at the same time serve to inspire the Democrats with the goal that they are pursuing. The goal, with confidence will come aggressive; with aggressiveness will come strength; with strength will come victory.

Connellsville Republicans will be forced to support their ticket in self-defense. The Democrats have made the issue.

Fortunately, the Republican city ticket is an exceptionally strong one, and Republicans will cheerfully support it, not only as a matter of political duty and public interest, but also as a rebuke to those external political influences which have intruded themselves upon Connellsville's private affairs for the promotion of their own selfish aims.

THE BOND ISSUE.

The proposed amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania, authorizing the issue of $50,000,000 bonds for the purpose of constructing permanent highways throughout the state, has been the subject of a great deal of discussion, most of which has been wholly political in character.

The opposition to the proposition comes chiefly if not wholly from Democratic organs supplemented by a few of the organs of the Elmer Committee headed by the Philadelphia North American. As against them the proposed amendment has the endorsement and active support of many prominent citizens not identified with politics.

For example, the Pennsylvania Good Roads Association, which numbers among its officers such prominent men as Ex-Governor Edwin S. Stuart, Judge John P. Eakin, Charles S. Ely of Johnstown, Charles M. Rehn of Philadelphia, A. R. Kappeler of York, John S. Billing of Erie, William E. Stroh of Chester, men of every political faith and prominent in every walk of life, sums up the proposition in the following unbiassed and brief manner: "The proposed amendment to the Constitution to permit the state to issue bonds for the purpose of constructing permanent highways is a measure of the highest importance. It is a measure which will benefit the state in a limited degree and for a specific purpose."

The need is imperative. Enthusiastic public sentiment demands good roads. Pennsylvania is far behind many of her sister states in meeting this demand. Dependent upon the action of the Legislature cannot be depended upon to resist the demands for appropriations for public and private enterprises in such a manner as to carry out the public interest. A bond issue offers the only alternative.

The state is out of debt. It can borrow money at a low interest. Repayment of the loan through the accumulation of a sinking fund and its subsequent sale during a low period of years will impose no serious burden on the revenues. Farms and other real estate will not be called upon to pay a dollar of this, because there is and can be no state tax on real estate in Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania Good Roads Association is in favor of only of the bond issue, but of a conservative and well-ordered method of issuing these bonds and expending the proceeds thereof. Should the bond issue be approved by the voters in November, no money will be available until the Legislature had passed and the Governor approved an act to carry out the constitutional amendment into effect. The Legislature and the Governor upon whom this duty would devolve are to be nominated at the popular primaries next spring and elected the following November. The people will be in a position to demand of all candidates assurance of how they will deal with the expenditure of the road fund.

This association will urge upon all candidates and upon the incoming state administration and Legislature calling office in January, 1915, the passage of an enabling act that will enable the state to issue bonds in amounts not to exceed $5,000,000, and as to produce only so much money as may be necessary in addition to appropriations from the current revenues to carry out a systematic, and practical campaign of first-class highway construction. The best efforts of an association of representatives of all shades of political belief and all walks of life are pledged to this end.

The only objection to the road bond issue worthy of serious consideration is that there is danger that the money will be spent extravagantly, or that much of it will be absorbed by graft. As pointed out above, if the amendment is approved, no money can be spent until it is voted by the next Legislature, which will come fresh from the people. The people will say how the money shall be expended. It is assuming too much to say that money will be stolen if it is allowed to pass through Republican hands, but that it will be honestly expended if it is paid out under Democratic direction. If there is no better objection to the bond issue than this, and there seems to be none, the vote on it ought to be practically unanimous.

Divesting the question of political bias and considering it only as a business proposition, the voter has only to determine in his mind whether it is advisable to defeat the amendment and go along as we are now, with a patch of good roads here and another there, the long stretches between being for the most part impassable in bad weather; or, whether it is better to approve the amendment, and with the proceeds of the authorized issue of $50,000,000 build a complete system of permanent highways which the people can enjoy now, and which will be paid for gradually out of the revenues of the state, having in mind the fact that at NO TIME WILL THE ROAD FUND BE USED FOR THE PAYMENT OF THESE BONDS.

FORGETS GREENE COUNTY.

In a recent article exploiting the coking districts of the South, the Baltimore Manufacturers Record said: "In considering the imperial extent of the coal of the South, one fact of most significant importance should be taken into account. This is, that according to the reports of experts, three-fourths of the coking coal of the United States is found in this section. Some experts say that the United States has more ore than coking coal, and that the iron and steel industry of this country is not dependent so much upon the supply of ore as it is upon that of coking coal. The Connellsville field of Pennsylvania, upon the extension of which has been built the iron industry of the Pittsburgh region, is being rapidly exhausted. It is small in area, and the best authorities give it at the outside a life of not more than 25 or 30 years before the entire supply will be exhausted. It is not of course possible to mine the last ton, nor the last million tons, for long before mining operations have reached that point the lessening production would make mining unprofitable."

The Connellsville coking field will be exhausted in the period mentioned. Present coking operations may in a large measure be abandoned but there remains the practically undeveloped Greene county coking field, which is just now being exploited and which contains more virgin coal than did either the original or central Connellsville field or the Lower Connellsville field.

Pittsburg is not going out of the steel business very soon, nor is the Connellsville region going out of the coke business any sooner.

A FINANCIAL JOKE.

The News accuses The Courier of being in politics for the money therein in it.

The Courier is certainly not in business for philanthropy. We can't afford it.

It is equally plain that we are not in politics for money, because we don't get enough money out of politics to pay the devil, much less the editors and the printers. If we had to depend upon our revenues from political sources The Courier would have suspended publication long years ago.

Under the circumstances we may be pardoned for observing that the ownership of The News indicates quite clearly that it is in politics for political and that consequently its political observations should not be too seriously regarded.

Two former kings of the Connellsville coke region, who at times had to buck the railroad buccanniers, have since become railroad magnates themselves. Henry C. Frick is prominent in the directorate of both the Pennsylvania and the Reading systems, while Colonel James M. Schoonmaker has been manager of the Lake Erie line for some time and is spoken of as President of the Rock Island system.

If the Connellsville coke region has not actually made men great, it has started them on the way to greatness.

The non-partisan plea of The News was just one of its little pleasantries.

When the returns are in Chairman Sterling will probably be convinced that Republican suckers are scarce in and around Mud Island.

The Only Democratic Organ seems to think the Connellsville election is a joke. Most citizens regard it as a serious business, but it may prove to be a joke on the Democratic county organization.

In the present situation The News is easily the Democratic organ of Fayette county. It is there with the bells on, and the cap, too.

The five per cent advance in rates asked by the railroads seems to be an average percentage and not a fixed ratio, but the railroads evince a cheerful disposition to treat every interest alike in levying their tariffs upward.

Come to Connellsville Friday night and have apples and doughnuts and lots of fun.

The burglarband is robbing the churches now. It hasn't missed a thing in town except the police.

The city authorities should not be too eager to offer inducements to city hall to visiting strangers. Charity is only for the needy.

The Connellsville ministers are shopping for souls.

Connellsville will keep open house on Halloween, but not rough house.

The News is evidently jealous of J. Fred Kurtz's epistolary abilities. Candidate Kurtz is a model letter writer. He has Chairman Sterling, himself, beaten to a fuzzy frazzle.

THE INITIATIVE AND THE REFERENDUM.

The only check upon the commission which is to govern Connellsville under the new city charter is the unwieldy Initiative and Referendum.

These devices of modern politics are to prevent big abuses. The little extravagances may go on.

The Initiative and the Referendum will not prevent the appointment of incompetents to the many offices at the disposal of the commission.

The Republican-Washington candidates pledge themselves, that if elected, only efficient men shall serve the city. They have no political machine to perpetuate.

STEEL EARNINGS FALL

Income for Third Quarter Below Recent Estimates.

Earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the third quarter of the calendar year issued today show a marked decrease compared with the preceding quarter, but are far in excess of the corresponding quarter in 1912.

Exclusive of interest on outstanding bonds of subsidiary companies, earnings were $4,533,531; total income, $3,450,400. These figures are from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 under recent estimates, and compare with $4,741,533 and $4,121,812, respectively, for the June quarter. The gain in earnings and total income over the third quarter of last year amounts, in round figures, to $4,350,000. Surplus for the quarter is $1,131,501 in the third quarter of last year.

An analysis of the earnings of July, August and September, it is seen that none of these months compare favorably with the three months of the second quarter. This is in line with general trend reports pointing toward a moderate recovery. The usual dividends were declared: 1% per cent on the preferred shares and 1% on the common, involving an outlay of $12,653,790.

UNIONTOWN CAPITAL

About to Develop a Very Promising New Field in West Virginia.

A new coal concern to be known as the Strange Creek Coal & Coke Company, is being formed to operate 4,000 acres of Strange Creek, West Virginia coal, owned principally by Fayette county parties. The officers chosen were all Uniontown men.

John G. Hibbs has been elected president, Fred B. Truesdale, treasurer, Earl R. Arford, secretary. A committee of seven men was appointed to secure a charter from the state of West Virginia and proceed immediately to complete the incorporation of this particular field of coal.

The coal land comprising this tract has railroad frontage on the Mead & Spear railroad, also the Coal & Coke railroad. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has branch within two miles of the property. This coal field has splendid location and is considered by men well versed in the coal and coke interests to be a natural tract of coal.

Buyers New Location.

The St. Louis Iron & Switch Company, St. Louis, has paid $17,000 for four acres in Wellston, a suburb, on which to build an addition to its plant, which is under construction now.

"Well, it's a funny thing for us to be—me and you—telling the truth. Not quite the truth, either; the truth dined up a little, which is the best kind of a lie that is. Give out what happened—say your own smartness cleared up the case, not mine. Get Dr. Cleary to certify that he found apoplexy at a more careful autopsy, made after the coroner's inquest, but that he suppressed the report at the request of the police. You can force him to do that to save his skin; his work is so in careless enough so's one more slip would make his political backers drop him. Say the theory that a man died of apoplexy just when a knife was held at his breast ready for him to fall on it, was an strange and unusual that you couldn't believe it in the beginning. So you held Lawrence Wade until you made sure. Say you suspected Miss Estrilla—Miss Perez—was the first, an' learnin' that she was superstitious, had her worked by a police stool-pigeon who played at being a professional medium. Say your men listened to the seances, an' broke in at the end an' pulled the whole story out of her. An' if that ain't awful near the truth, I never made up a lie that was."

"I'll tell to you how that excuse us for letting Estrilla—Perez—go," said Inspector McGee, with a sur of sarcasm.

"That point," said Rosalie, "is the best thing I've thought out—the very best. Up to the confession—that's our story—you hadn't the least idea but Miss Estrilla does it all herself. We'd never thought about their changin' clothes. An' when you got the confession, you went out to arrest him, but he was gone—probably tipped off somehow. How, search me! I haven't thought out a good lie there. Maybe you'll have to invent that yourself. Otherwise it'll just be one of the many tales of the New York Police Department. Reprimand you! Why, they'll give you a medal!"

McGee still looked down at the paper-knife.

"That ain't all," he said; "you fooled me, that's what you did. You made a fool out of me."

At this Rosalie fired. A light came into her eyes that rolled ten years from her age—the light of anger. A color came into her cheeks that took off another ten—the pink of contempt. "Make a fool of you, Martin McGee! I only made a fool of one person. That's me, Rosalie Le Grange. Who took all the risks in this job? You? Not a bit of it! Me, Rosalie. And what's more, Martin—she paused and gulped; and something came into her face that reduced her to a girl—who did I do it for? Me, Rosalie! I guess not. What was there in it for me? When this thing broke, I was independent and living my own life—an' a clean, self-respecting life. Do you think I wanted to do it? Well, you can bet not. I started this job mainly 'cause I didn't want to see the fine young fellow Wade go to the chair an' because I didn't want to see that beautiful young thing broken for life—I mean Constance Hanaka.

"You Won't Get Him."

"But after I got into it, I realized that I was workin' more for somebody else than I was for me. And that somebody else was you, Martin McGee. I'd a given it up long ago if I hadn't kept my mind on you. An' I'd become fond of that sick Estrilla woman and of that little brother of hers. I went right on. Do you suppose I like to do what I did to them? Well, you never made a bigger mistake. I ain't what I used to be. When I brought back her father and mother—what that poor Miss Estrilla, I just raved. But after I found that she wasn't guilty, nor him—in a manner of speaking—I had to hand them a square deal just like the rest. I'd done everything I could think of, I'd loved McGee—but I couldn't kill a man I liked and sympathized with, just to slip your career. An' so I done the next best thing. I fixed it so nobody would be involved in it but me. I could have told you, an' persuaded you, maybe, that the right thing was to let Perez get away. But you'd have been my accomplice. You couldn't have come on the stand an' sworn clean—as you can now—that you had nothing to do with it. I kept you out of it. I'm sure to take my medicine. I never whimpered yet, an' I won't now. An' that, Martin McGee, is why I fooled you."

Never had words poured so fast from the lips of Rosalie Le Grange. And as they poured, many expressions flashed across Inspector McGee's clear-shaven police face.

"Is this the truth, Rose?" he said—and gulped. "Is it the truth?"

"It's the truth if anybody ever told it," she replied.

"He was on his feet now; she rose also.

"You're a wonder of the world," he said.

"I always maintained that!" she replied, her old self dancing in her dimples.

Martin McGee never understood why his defenses fell all at once, why his arms, working as though in obedience of his will, encircled Rosalie Le Grange.

When, a month before, Martin so exploded in her presence, Rosalie had wrenched herself away. If she lay unresisting in his arms now it was because she had seen his face. And Rosalie Le Grange knew above all things how to read faces. She yielded her waist, but not yet her lips.

"Martin," she asked softly, "is this on the level?"

"It's on the level, Rose. Rose, I don't care for anything. I want you to marry me!"

The doorkeeper had been told not to disturb Inspector McGee. We will join the doorkeeper. It seems more tactful. Let us merely glance in on them ten minutes later. They are seated again; and McGee is patting her hair, ponderously but yet softly. Rosalie's eyes, usually so big and grave—in such contrast with her smiles and her dimples—are shining as we have never seen them shine before.

"How did it come," asked Martin, "that you could ever take to a great big cow of a fellow like me?"

The mischief danced in her dimples. "Because you are so big an' mutton-headed!" she said. Then the dimples went away, and the eyes again regained over her expression. "Because you're a real man, Marty. Because you've plugged ahead and done things, an' because you're brave, too. I guess it ain't good for a man to be too kind an' smart. That's for the woman—that's my part in this combination. An' besides, the way your hair grows in front is cute."

"Aw, cut that out, Rosalie!"—this in a tone of infinite tenderness—a tone as playful as she comports with the dignity of an inspector.

And—but we had better rejoin the doorman.

Only we should glance in just once more. Inspector McGee, as though struck with a sudden humorous idea, is saying:

"It's funny, Rosalie—here we've got engaged—and I don't know your real name!"

"That's how I'm sure you love me, Martin. When folks are in love, they don't ask no questions. Well, it's Rose Granger, if you've got to know, born Smith. A widow—good, not grass. I married Jim Granger. He was no good, but I cared for him till he died. You've got thirty years or so—because I sense we'll both live long—to listen to what Jim Granger did to me. We've other things to talk about first, Marty, you haven't given me an engagement present."

"You'll get a diamond solitaire as soon as I can beat it up-town!" said Martin.

"Somethin' else first. I want you to fix it so the New York Police Department makes an awful bluff at findin' Juan Perez—an' never looks in the right place."

"I guess I can promise that," laughed Inspector McGee.

"An' for a wedding present," pursued Rosalie, "I guess you can see that this poor sister never gets put through."

"That's easy, too," replied McGee. "Now that that thing is fixed up, where's that Estrilla-Perez person, anyhow? What did you do with him?"

"That information is going to be my wedding present to you," responded Rosalie Le Grange.

CHAPTER XX.

Taking Stock.

"How's this head-line for that stock-in' job?" asked Tommy North, suddenly looking up from his writing. "Mountable Climbers Wear Our Hose And Come Back Without a Hole!"

"Pretty good," replied Betsy-Barbara from her corner by the typewriter. "Now get the rest of it." She resumed her furious little stabs at the keys.

The sudden conclusion of the Hanaka case left Betsy-Barbara afloat. She could not go back to Arden if she would, and she would not if she could. It was her whim to remain in New York; but the select young ladies' seminar of the metropolis hesitated to employ a young woman who had figured so conspicuously on the front pages of yellow newspapers. Between this

In search of employment, Betsy-Barbara continued to typewrite the correspondence of the Thomas W. North Agency. Tommy, indeed, had offered her regular employment as his clerk. She spurned that offer, holding it to be mere gratitude. When she had learned the trade, she said, she might accept a position as typist, and not a minute before.

Tommy, unmoved by her businesslike resolution, continued to view Betsy-Barbara. Presently the pencil dropped from his hand. He turned in his swivel chair and called: "Betsy-Barbara!" in a tone wholly inappropriate to office hours.

Being a woman, she caught it.

"Tommy North," she said, without looking up from the keys, "read me that motto over your desk!"

"Betsy-Barbara!"

"Business Thoughts in Business Hours," read Tommy, obediently.

"Well, what does that mean?" asked Betsy-Barbara.

"But what I meant to talk about now," replied Tommy in a wheedling tone, "is a matter of business. I've been taking stock. This one-going concern made last month a hundred and fifty dollars above light, rent, office expenses and every other thing. By Christmas we'll be making a hundred dollars a week."

"You'll be making," corrected Betsy-Barbara as she jerked back the typewriter carriage to begin the struggle with another line.

"That's the point of these remarks. You ought," he paused here—"you ought to have a share. You know you're responsible for the whole thing. Who made me start this concern? Who got me to cut out the booze and go into business for myself?"

"Well," replied Betsy-Barbara, "a tract of a preacher might have done that—anything which set you on the right way at the right time. And you wouldn't think of offering a partnership to a tract or a preacher."

"Betsy-Barbara!" called Tommy again. And on that name, uttered all too gently for the address of a stern employer to an inexperienced stenographer, he rose and crossed to her side. Somehow she did not protest—although she continued to look down on the keys. Her fingers stopped.

Tommy gulped; and his first words, as he settled on the stool at her side, were far from his original intention—and further still from strict business.

"Betsy-Barbara—why did you play around with that poor devil of an Estrilla?"

"If I wanted to be impertinent, I'd ask how that concerns you," replied Betsy-Barbara, sulkily. "Well—because I liked him, I suppose."

"Do you remember," Tommy pursued, "the last time I got drunk—the last time I ever will!"

"The shoe-buckle night? Yes."

"You never knew why, of course!" said Tommy. "Do you remember some one coming into the front hall and going right out again? That was I. You were sitting—I saw you looking at him—I thought—"

"You didn't think that," responded Betsy-Barbara. She paused, while the truth in her struggled against woman's instinct to use strategy. In that branch of human activity which is woman's chief business. The truth won.

"That's funny. You saw me when I was nearer—well, liking him—than I ever was before or after. He was a dear. You couldn't help being amused and flattered by him—but nothing else."

"Why didn't you like him, really—what held you back?"

Betsy-Barbara pulled over the carriage for another line—not with a jerk this time, but slowly and softly. At the same languid pace, she resumed striking the keys.

"Do you call this business?" she asked—very weakly.

Tommy North laid a hand upon hers, stilling the keys under her fingers.

"Betsy-Barbara, this is business. I was talking partnership. I didn't mean that kind. You know—oh, blazes—I meant—why did I brace up and go to work, anyhow? It was because—you—I love you—there, that's out!"

Betsy-Barbara, her hand still helpless between the keys and his greater hand, raised her face. If she had shone before with elvin light, she shone now with the light of many angels. The shoen and glitter of hair, the fire of other eyes, the sparkle of her little teeth behind her parted lips—all the glory which makes stars and systems and beasts and the generations of men—illuminated and transformed Betsy-Barbara. An instant so, and that light faded. The elvin light shone again.

"Tommy North," she said, "are you proposing to me right in business hours? Get back to your seat! Your answer will be transmitted to you in business form."

There was hope and yet wonderment in Tommy's face as he obeyed. Betsy-Barbara tweaked the sheets from the roller, inserted a new page, and began to type very fast—for her. She finished. She was sufficed with color as she drew out the page and laid it on Tommy's desk. He turned to read; and Betsy-Barbara's hand brushed his cheek ever so lightly.

"MR. THOMAS W. NORTH,"

"Dear sir:

"Your pro position is accepted and I trust that the ensuing partnership will be long and prosperous. Yurs sincerely,

"Elizabeth Lane."

"Business forms must be maintained even in this solemn and awful moment," said Betsy-Barbara.

"Well, there's one thing about being a high cop that's worth while," remarked Martin McGee, "you certainly do get swell attention in a lobster palace."

Inspector McGee, in his dinner coat and his diamonds, sat in the preferred corner farthest from the music. Rosalie, reclining opposite in two thousand dollars' worth of diamonds, eight hundred dollars' worth of clothes, three hundred dollars' worth of massage, and a hundred dollars' worth of hair-dressing and hat, followed with smiling eyes a wave of agitation which ran from waiter to waiter until it broke at the door, in a spray of Italian-Swiss-French gestures, against the head waiter and majordomo. The lady with Inspector McGee, the lady whom he brought regularly to an excited waiter-captain explained to his chief—had complained of a tainted clam. It was frightful, terrible, the head waiter replied. Some one must suffer. Inspector McGee might never come again. Some morning after hours the bar would be raided. Mabel Accident!

When McGee had condescended to accept apologies, he resumed to Rosalie:

"I don't even have to pay for my New Year's eve table reservations. That's what it is being a cop."

Rosalie dropped her pink right hand on her plaid left one, and fell to playing with a new diamond solitaire that dangled for a while and juster all her other jewels. Her dimples threw back an answering flash.

"Enjoy it while you can, Marty," she said. "It won't be long."

Even yet, Inspector McGee reflected, Rosalie Le Grange had surprises for him. He did not realize, for he was no seer of the future, that she would be giving him just such surprises all his life long.

"What's new with you this time?" he inquired, smiling indulgently.

"Nothing with me," replied Rosalie. "Only I'm breakin' the news to you. Inspector is as high up as a policeman can get. Your days on the force are numbered, Martin McGee. An' I haven't made up my mind yet," she added, dimpling now not on the diamonds, but on him, "whether to make you Democratic boss of the state senate, or just leader of Tammany hall!"

That day was raw November, with a wet sticky suggestion of rain in the air. From the colonial piazza where Constance stood, waiting, the grounds rolled away cold and naked to the great double gate. A cluster of bare elms hid the farther reaches of the walk from her view. He who was coming would approach unobserved until he was almost upon her. In the whirl and perturbation of her spirit, she found herself thankful for that. What ever happened, it would come suddenly.

Rosalie Le Grange, and every one else most vitally concerned in the Wade-Hanska case had considered it best that she, the romantic heroine or these events, should be in hiding when Lawrence Wade came out of the tomb, a free man. One must consider the newspapers—always the newspapers, with their photographers, their special writers, their insistence on the "human interest" features of the celebrated case. So even before Captain McGee flashed to the headquarters reporters that Margarita Perez, detained in the criminal ward at Bellevue hospital, was the solvent of the Hanaka case, Rosalie removed her secretly to this friendly country place near Arden. Days followed in which the reporters tracked Lawrence Wade at all hours in order to discover him in the act of meeting Constance. In that period, he scarcely dared write, lest the address on an envelope might betray her whereabouts. Now, in the general march of events, the interest in the Hanaka case had become dull. And today, in this very hour, he was coming—with what message on his lips?

Old Time Football.

In the twelfth century London enjoyed football. Fitz-Stephen, clerk to Thomas a Becket, tells how after dinner the youths of the city would "ad dress themselves" to football. These sportsmen were fastidious in their way. The scholars of each school had a bull pennant to themselves, as had, indeed, most of the particular trades. The fathers of the players, too, were "as youthful as the youngest," for "their natural heat seeming to be revived at the sight of so much agility," they sprang from their staid into the arena. In later days, too, the excitement of the game has been known to infect the spectators. Somebody wrote of a game in 1558: "These two men were killed by Guild Gunter. Gunter's son-in-law and ye Gregories fell together by ye years at football. Guild Gunter drew his dagger and broke both the withers and they died both the with a fortnight after."

His Idea of It.

"George Washington," read the sunlit boy from his history, "was born Feb. 22, 1732, A. D."

"What does 'A. D.' stand for?" inquired the teacher.

The small boy pondered. "I don't exactly know," he hesitated. "After dark, I guess."—Elizabeth Lane.

THE ARCADE.

Manager Dan Hall has promised a series of high class vaudeville shows and kept that promise the first half this week for a starter. The last half will excel the first half as it brings the "Original Juvenile Minstrels," the cleverest bunch of young performers, enroute, any every one an artist. One particularly bright feature will be the clever singing, dancing and comedy work by the child wonders, Misses Anna and Lydia Pfeil. These two kids are a whole show in themselves. Other clever juveniles in the cast are Frank McFluck, Stokes & Campbell, Lloyd Slavers, and the three "Three Sisters." This is a show for the whole family and should not be missed. The usual amateur contest will be held Friday night and it is to be hoped that Connelleville does not let Uniontown carry away the first prize for a third time in succession.

PITTSBURG SEAM GOING

F. C. Keighley Predicts Early Exhaustion of That Coal.

The Pittsburg vein of coal, the occur of this section of the coal region, is practically gone, according to F. C. Keighley, superintendent of the Oliver & Snyder Steel Company's three plants near Uniontown. He added:

"It wouldn't surprise me if in my lifetime coal would be looked upon as one of the raw materials from which things are manufactured. I wouldn't be afraid to say that the future we will get our medicine from coal. The coal of today was the vegetation of yesterday."

"Our crops are today growing on gases that come from these coke ovens. These gases are not lost; they are precipitated. We don't know what we have in Fayette county, but we do know that the life of the Pittsburg vein of coal is short."

Francis Wilson is the author of the play, and the author of the stellar role is entrusted to Henry Buckler, who has supported some of the biggest stars of this country. The baby part is played by a little girl, Miss Yvonne, who has electrified audiences and managers with her acting. Comedy and tragedy she depicts with equal facility and with a facility hardly expected in one so young. Her face is well known to the patrons of moving pictures. The supporting cast is in the hands of competent artists and a complete scenic equipment is carried.

"THE SPENDTHRIFT."

If you are a husband with a charming wife who is, without a thought, spending your money faster than you can earn it; if you are a wife with a husband whose efforts to induce you to economize simply bore you; if you are a young man in love with the best girl in the world; if you are the young woman with whom he is in love; if you are a cynical old bachelor; if you are just a plain, ordinary citizen who likes a good substantial play, well staged and excellently acted—if you are any of these you will do well to go to the Soisson Theatre Saturday matinee and night, November 1, and see "The Spendthrift." Mr. Porter Emerson Brown, its author, calls it "a vital drama of today," and judging by the size of the audiences which attended its every performance of its six months' run at the Hudson Theatre, New York, New Yorkers are interested in at least one of the "vital" problems of the present, which has been "vital" in times past and will be "vital" in time to come—unless there is a vital change in every day human nature.

"The Spendthrift" is the frivolous working business man, whose and utterly selfish wife of a hard-thoughtless extravagance drives him into bankruptcy and thus brings about the one thing needed to awaken her better nature and to transform her into a true wife and help-mate.

THE COKE MARKET IS DEALT SAVAGE BLOW THIS WEEK

By Sale of 10,000 Tons for November Delivery at $1.90.

IRON AND STEEL TRADES SAG

A Depression Covering Considerable Number of Months is Anticipated Which Condition Will Reflect Itself in the Connellsville Coke Trade.

From The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29.—The reported sale of 10,000 tons of Connellsville coke for November delivery at an eastern steel price at $1.90 has dealt the $2.50 price a savage blow. Prompt furnace coke has been held at $2.00 a ton, but a subsidence there is now probable. The transaction mentioned practically closes the contract market for the year, so that its effect upon the price of prompt coke cannot at the moment be measured with any degree of accuracy. Full shipments are being made on contracts and regular consumers have no business in the open market. There is little or no coke pressing on the market, and producers are endeavoring to avoid accumulating any overloads of stocks. Contract furnace coke is purely nominal. The majority of the merchant production is held at formerly for a price of $2.50. There is outside coke to be taken off the market before this price can be realized, but no definite price is set on such outside coke as there is an inquiry to bring out an expression from the possible sellers. It is practically agreed that some at least of this coke could be sold at $2.25. Consumers, on the other hand, express the opinion that in due time they will be able to cover at $2.00.

Foundry coke has been holding up fairly well, demand on contract being moderately good, while occasionally a little prompt coke is called for, and quotations remain as formerly. The market is quotable as follows: Prompt furnace (nominal) $2.50; Contract furnace (nominal) $2.50; Prompt foundry $2.75; Contract foundry $2.75; Interest in the coke market proper yields to interest in the iron and steel situation in general. Conditions have been rapidly becoming less satisfactory in the iron and steel trade, until now it is universally recognized that the trade is booked for at least a full if not an entire year's covering a considerable number of months. Steel prices are declining in irregular fashion and no one attempts to measure the distance they will ultimately drop, the matter for speculation and forecast being rather long the condition will last. In general, it seems natural to conclude that the uncertainties as to how many coke operators will adhere to a given quotation, or how long they will adhere, are much less than the uncertainties which surround the iron and steel trade itself, and as the condition of the iron and steel trade necessarily affects the coke situation, irrespective of theories evolved within the coke trade, the prospects of the iron and steel trade itself become the more important consideration.

The pig iron market has weakened slightly since last report, both in price and in the general tone. Bessemer pig iron has become easily available at $13.50. Under the former quotation, and as small a lot as 100 tons has gone at this figure. Bessemer pig iron has sold at $13.75. Foundry iron has sold at several instances on the basis of $13.75. Values for 10 cents under last week's quotation, and while this can be had at $13 without difficulty, or 25 cents under last week's quotation. While it is impossible that pig iron can decline much more, the tendency at the moment is the reverse of upwards.

BIG GAS CONSUMER

Pennsylvania Leads All Other States as User of This Fuel.

The natural gas industry of Pennsylvania surpassed in 1912 that of any previous year from almost every point of view. Except in 1909, which was a year of business depression, the quantity of gas consumed in Pennsylvania has continued to increase steadily, according to H. Hill, of the United States Geological Survey, until in 1912 the enormous total of 173,656,000 cubic feet was consumed. The gas was used largely in manufacturing and other industrial purposes, the quantity consumed for these purposes being 124,324,911,000 cubic feet, valued at $11,333,918, an average price of 11.55 cents a thousand cubic feet. The consumption of gas in this state in 1911 was 159,101,374,000 cubic feet, valued at $27,910,001, an average of 15.01 cents a thousand cubic feet. Pennsylvania leads all other states in the quantity of gas consumed.

In the industrial world the year 1912 was one of great prosperity, and natural gas is one of the fuels most needed and sought for. It is the ideal fuel for the manufacture of iron, steel and glass, for which the State of Pennsylvania is noted, and it is the presence of this gas in the fields of this state that has helped to make it the leading manufacturing state in the country. Since the introduction of natural gas into the industrial establishments of Pittsburgh in 1881, this district has become the greatest industrial center in the United States. It is estimated that more fuel is consumed in this city and its immediate vicinity and more coal and coke are shipped into and through the Pittsburgh district than in any other district in the world.

IRON AND STEEL TRADE FEELS TARIFF REVISION

Effect of the Democratic Policy Now Beginning to Make Itself Felt.

Production Decreasing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will say tomorrow: The Chicago meeting Friday and Saturday of the American Iron and Steel Institute brought together a majority of the leading steel manufacturers of the country. The impression created in the gathering was that the manufacturers are less hopeful for the immediate future than the trade at large had supposed. The idea apparent was that the trade has entered upon a definite reaction rather than a temporary lull, and while hopes were entertained for a measurable improvement in from three to six months these hopes did not involve the restoration of a full measure of former activity, and pressure upon productive capacity, in less than a period of years.

The rate of production is decreasing more rapidly than a fortnight ago. This week the steel production of the country averages approximately 80% of the full capacity, and the rate will probably drop to between 65 and 75% within 20 days. Contract business on books has become of minor consequence, on account of price irregularities, and the great bulk of tonnage being shipped is the result of fresh orders. The actual bookkeeping seems to average not over two-thirds of capacity at the outside.

Prices continue to decline in spots. The leading interest has reduced steel pipe by $1 to $3 a ton. Bars and shapes have become quotable at $25 or $1 a ton decline within the week, while galvanized sheets have declined another dollar a ton and billets and sheet bars are off more than a dollar a ton. The tariff is no longer a serious element in the steel situation.

ELECTRIC STEEL.

Canadian Company is Making Forgings at New Plant.

The first electric steel furnace to turn out castings commercially in Canada is yielding about two tons a day. It has been built from several years' experimenting by James A. Moffat and T. C. Irving, Jr., graduates of McGill University, who have constructed a furnace in Toronto capable of turning out seven tons a day, claimed to be superior to crucible steel.

A company has been formed, known as the Moffat-Irving Electric Smelters, Ltd., to establish a much larger plant in Toronto.
